

“Development on the move”

Towards an assessment of migration development and human rights links »

Jean-Christophe Dumont

International Migration Division

Directorate for Employment, Labour and Social Affairs, OECD

Figure II.5. Opinions about the impact of immigrants on the economy and balance of opinions in favour of immigration in certain OECD countries, 2003

General comments

- Access / Impact
- Short term / long term impacts
- Individual / national
- Causality
- Types of migrant/migration

Development on the move

- Sample size
- Calculation of return migration rates
- Coverage of emigrants
- Results / literature review
- Policy recommendations

Towards an assessment of migration development and human rights links

- Root causes of migration
- Impact on origin countries
- Impact on receiving countries
- Impact on migrants and their families
- General issues

Table 2.1. Times the Difference in Growth Rates of GDP and Remittances Exceeded 1% in Selected Countries

Country	Year	Difference in Growth Rates			Difference in Growth Rates
		Remittances	GDP	%	Remittances	GDP	%
Bolivia (2002)							Honduras (2002)
		Non-Remittances Income	0.556	0.556			Non-Remittances Income	0.565	0.565
		Total Income	-0.001	-0.3%	-0.006	-1%	Total Income	0.555	0.555
Mexico (2002)							Ecuador (2004)
		Non-Remittances Income	0.501	0.501			Non-Remittances Income	0.477	0.477
		95% Confidence Interval	(0.500; 0.503)				95% Confidence Interval	(0.477; 0.478)
		Total Income	0.499	0.499	-0.001	-0.2%	Total Income	0.491	0.491	-0.001	-0.2%
El Salvador (2000)							Nicaragua (2001)
		Non-Remittances Income	0.528	0.528			Non-Remittances Income	0.497	0.497
		Total Income	0.496	0.496	-0.031	-3.1%	Total Income	0.519	0.519	-0.020	-1.0%		